

Dino Bossi

Dino Bossi is the Head of Government Services for G4S Risk Management vice David de Stacpoole, a role he took over in April 2019.

Formerly a career soldier, he left the Army in 2014 immediately after commanding his battalion, 1st Battalion Welsh Guards, on operations in Afghanistan and on deployments to Kazakhstan, Belize and the Falkland Islands. He served 4-operational tours of Afghanistan, including a year in an international Special Forces role as the head of GEN David Petraeus's counter-insurgency task force based in Kabul and Helmand and two in Iraq (one under a particularly able Brigadier!) as well as the usual slew of Balkans and Northern Ireland deployments.

Prior to his role with G4S, he was a Director of Barclays and designed, built and ran the global investigations and whistleblowing capability for the bank which ran on 5-continent, based out of Canary Wharf. He then had two years running his own consulting business, Addveritas Consulting Limited, dealing with corporate investigations, ethics and transparency in the financial and security sectors.

He lives in Wiltshire and is married with two children. His hobbies do not include gardening.
