

CASTOR VALI

Lawrence Clinton, Chief Operating Officer, Castor Vali Ltd

Lawrence Clinton is a Director of the Castor Vali Group, an organisation specialising in International Protective Services, Corporate Security and Risk Management in emerging and high-risk markets but with a significant footprint and strategic focus on the African Continent.

Lawrence joined Castor Vali in 2013 where he successfully designed and directed the implementation of the company's new management system as part of the UK pilot for ISO/PAS 28007; this enabled Castor Vali to become one of the first Maritime Security companies to achieve certification to this standard. Since then, he has supervised the company's certification to a number of internationally recognised standards.

He has built up a wide portfolio of skills over a 23-year career in the Royal Marines covering operations, training, signals intelligence, management and leadership. This includes years of cumulative operational experience in a variety of challenging and hostile environments around the world including four operational tours within Iraq and Afghanistan. He studied Strategic Direction and Leadership at Manchester Business School and since joining Castor Vali has been at the forefront of policy, process and strategic development.
