Information

The SCEG Maritime Security Symposium on the 14 September in Lloyd's will provide strategic dialogue on the threats facing commercial shipping.

The UK Shipping Minister will open proceedings and the panel discussions will be led by security experts from shipping and maritime security companies.

The Symposium will examine the threats and risk mitigation measures applicable to the Gulf of Guinea and the Indian Ocean.

It promises to be a lively and stimulating symposium and of interest to all those concerned about the security of the global fleet.
